

A guide for Tolpuddle festival attendees in the event of an evacuation of the festival site.

The Tolpuddle Martyrs' Festival is a very safe, family-friendly event, and we are proud that there have been no incidents in the past. However, it is important that visitors and all attendees know what to do should organisers need to evacuate, or move large numbers of attendees away from a hazard or danger on site.

In the event of an emergency, stewards will advise attendees of the nature of the emergency and the appropriate course of action. This will be done by loud haler or via the PA system.

In the unlikely event of the whole site needing to be evacuated, please proceed directly to the assembly point in the GMB field on the opposite side of the road from the main site – marked with a ✕ on the below plan. Stewards will guide the way and supervise road crossings.

The Kids' Area team, along with all children, parents and carers located in that vicinity, will congregate at the "Kid's assembly point" in the GMB field – marked with a ● being supervised throughout the evacuation by the Kid's Area team.

Should any child be found unaccompanied during the evacuation process, an available volunteer, staff or security member will chaperone them to the Kids' assembly point, where parents can be reunited in line with the Festival's Lost and Found Policy.

Parents with lost children or who have left children unaccompanied in the Kids' Area should proceed directly to the kid's assembly point where they will need to collect their children before proceeding to the main assembly point.

Please wait in ✕ area until you receive further instructions.
